Shakespeare: Annotated World Bibliography for 1979

Edited by
HARRISON T. MESEROLE
JOHN B. SMITH
The Pennsylvania State University

THE WORLD SHAKESPEARE BIBLIOGRAPHY, compiled with the assistance of an International Committee of Correspondents, attempts to record annually all important books, articles, reviews of books, dissertations and dissertation abstracts, theatrical productions and reviews of productions, and significant reprints of works related to Shakespeare published during the year. Some items bearing earlier publication dates that have just become available to us are also included. Annotation has been provided for each item unless, first, its title fully communicates its content, or second, it has not been available for examination by a correspondent or the editor.

The Bibliography for 1979, like its predecessor for 1978, has been organized into two divisions. The first, General Shakespeareana, gathers into ten categories publications that treat broad aspects of Shakespeare study. The second, Studies of Particular Works, lists all studies of individual plays, coherent groups of plays (e.g., "Tragedies," "Comedies"), or poems, under the individual titles of Shakespeare's works. Users of the Bibliography will note that in both divisions we have modified certain categories to permit more efficient classification of publications issued in these fields. In division one, we have added a sub-section on Shakespeare and His Stage, and in division two, under each individual play title we have provided two sub-heads: Scholarship and Criticism; Productions. Thus, readers will find all publications principally concerned with Hamlet in one place, whether those publications focus on Hamlet as a literary document or as a stage presentation.

Each essay or book has been fully listed once only, in the category where we believe it will be sought for by the largest group of users of the Bibliography. When the content of an item so demands, it will also be listed in other sections of the Bibliography using the author's name, a short title, and an "s.v." reference to the location of the full entry. Concluding the HARRISON T. MESEROLE, Professor of English at The Pennsylvania State University, is Editor, with J. Max Patrick, of Seventeenth-Century News; for over a decade he was the Editor of the massive MLA International Bibliography.

JOHN B. SMITH, Associate Professor of English at The Pennsylvania State University, is a specialist in the field of computers and the humanities and serves as Technical Editor for the World Shakespeare Bibliography.

Bibliography are four indexes: I. Names of authors, editors, compilers, and other contributors to the publications listed in this Bibliography; II. Names of actors, actresses, directors, producers, scene designers, and other persons associated with Shakespeare on the stage, as referred to in publications listed in this Bibliography; III. Names of dramatists, poets, writers of fiction, philosophers, musicians, and other artists mentioned in studies of Shakespeare listed in this Bibliography; IV. Descriptive terms (words or phrases indicating themes, ideas, concepts, and subjects dealt with by publications listed in this Bibliography). Numbers in these indexes refer to the item numbers in this Bibliography.

Entry format is basically that of the MLA Handbook. To facilitate annual storage of data in the computer, however, certain modifications have been introduced. Every item is dated. Arabic numbers have replaced roman to denote the volume number of a journal. When the issue number of a journal is required for a given entry, it appears in lower-case roman immediately after the arabic volume number. An arabic number preceded by F in square brackets following an entry title refers to an item listed in the "Festschriften and Other Analyzed Collections" sub-section which begins this Bibliography. An asterisk (*) preceding the author's name of an item listed in this Bibliography indicates that the item has been entered in previous years' compilations, but is the subject of the current reviews or review-articles for which data are provided at the end of the entry.

It would be comforting to believe, as does Proteus (TGV), that "were man but constant, he were perfect." Bibliographers, though they strive for perfection, know better. The editor of this Bibliography will be grateful, therefore, to colleagues who discover errors and report corrections. Further, authors are urged to send offprints, issues of journals, and books for listing and annotation in the World Shakespeare Bibliography for 1980. Each document received will be acknowledged and, if required, returned to the sender.
